Rugby Union Scorecard 1

This is the scorecard for a rugby union match played between Australia and New Zealand (All Blacks). Rugby union is a popular game in these two countries and each year they compete with each other for the Bledisloe Cup. Rugby is different from many other sports because it is against the rules to throw the ball forward. To score points for your team you can either run the ball over the line at your opponents end of the ground or kick the ball over a cross bar. Australia and New Zealand are among the best teams in the world.

Answer these questions about the match:

1. On what date was the game played? _____
2. What time did the game start? _____
3. Who are the All Blacks? _____
4. How long did this game of rugby take to play (at least)? _____
5. How many people paid to see the match? _____
6. Where was the match played? _____
7. What was the final score line? _____
8. There are some shortened words used on this scorecard. pen-ok means the penalty was OK and there was a score. To score with a penalty you have to kick the ball over the cross bar.

What do you think pen-x means? _____

What do you think conv-x means? _____

What do you think conv-ok means? _____

What do you think stats mean? _____

9. Look at the score sheet to work out how many points you get for a:

Penalty _____

Conversion _____

Try _____

10. There are in fact four different ways to score points in rugby union, what are they?

11. Who was the first person to score a try in the game? _____
